Research & Professional Experience

A. Area of Professional Expertise:

Dr. Román has proven experience in using remote sensing technologies with drones for characterizing various coastal environmental phenomena and marine ecosystems. His work ranges from determining water quality parameters (such as chlorophyll-a, turbidity, total suspended solids, etc.) and monitoring intertidal systems to observing and tracking the evolution of polar regions. Specifically, he has worked with data obtained from various miniaturized sensors that can be equipped on drones (including RGB optical, thermal, LiDAR, gas sensors, water sampling devices, multi- and hyperspectral sensors), combined with emerging machine learning techniques and programming languages (Python, R, Matlab, etc.) to develop algorithms and processing methodologies that enable the study of these systems at local and regional scales.
